SAY DILLINGER VISITED ROOMS OF DETECTIVES

Woman Says Bandit Accompanied Woman to Headquarters

Chicago, July 30 —(AP)— The Daily Times said today that John Dillinger visited the detective bureau four times between June 11 and July 22, the date he was slain by federal agents.

The hunted desperado parked his car at the curb, entered the building and rode up to the 13th floor, the newspaper said, adding:

"Each time he sat in a public waiting room for an hour or more, then left through the crowded foyer, probably brushing against policemen, judges and lawyers."

Dillinger made his visits as an escort to his last sweetheart, Polly Hamilton Keele, a waitress, the paper added, and she went there for physical examinations required of all food handlers.

Woman Informant

The Times said it had obtained its information from a woman whose name was withheld but who claimed she saw Dillinger in the waiting room June 11, 18 and 25 and July 20. She identified the gang leader and his girl friend, the article set out, from their pictures.

The Chicago Tribune said today that Indiana state police are seeking to tear aside the veil of secrecy in the slaying of John Dillinger.

Federal agents of the Bureau of Investigation and East Chicago police who worked on the case in Chicago without notifying local authorities have refused to disclose their source of information.

Investigate Rumor

The Indiana police, under Capt. Matt Leach, were determined to investigate the rumor that "the finger" had been put on Dillinger by a woman.

Police investigators said they had established dealings between Mrs. Anna Sage, Dillinger's companion on his last night alive, and Sergt. Martin Zarkovich, East Chicago police detective who was present at the shooting.

Zarkovich, however, said he had not seen the woman since 1928 and their presence at the shooting was a coincidence.

"We want to get to the bottom of this whole mess in Lake county," Captain Leach said.

Von Papen May Not Be Acceptable as Minister to Vienna

Vienna, July 30 —(AP)— Doubt was expressed in informed quarters today that the new Austrian cabinet would accept Franz von Papen, German Vice Chancellor, as Minister to Austria.

Chancellor Hitler of Germany has appointed Von Papen in an effort to smooth over the troubled Austro-German relations, but it was pointed out that the acceptance of Hitler's envoy must receive the unanimous vote of the Austrian cabinet.

A single vote of opposition by any cabinet minister, could make the Vice Chancellor persona non grata as minister to Austria. A suggestion was heard that von Papen might be accepted with certain conditions, one of which, it was said, might be a demand for the dissolution of the Austrian Nazi Legion in Bavaria.

Strange Killings at Steel Plant in Steubenville, O. Are Belived Solved Today

World War Veteran, Enemy of Germans, is Being Held

Steubenville, O., July 30—(AP)— Police believe they have the answer today to the series of strange killings at the Wheeling Steel Corporation mill.

A 49-year-old World War veteran, arrested yesterday, was carrying, strapped to his waist, a .38 caliber special revolver which ballistics experts said was the weapon used in the slaying of three men and the wounding of a fourth.

The suspect, a worker at the mill, gave the name of David Dascanio, alias Dasco. He said he carried the revolver for his protection, insisting:

"I no shoot nobody."

In their long questioning of Dascanio, police asked him if he killed any Germans in the war.

"Yes," he replied. "They all ought to be killed."

Had German Names

Three of the four victims here had German names.

Bullets taken from their bodies had been fired from Dascanio's gun, the ballistics experts found.

He was arrested by special officers who had been watching his actions since Jan. 30 when Fred Melshmeimer was shot down, fatally wounded, on the mill property. Three months later, James Barnett, another mill employe, was shot and wounded in the darkness around the plant. He is recovering. A month ago a "wild man" shot and killed two more mill workers.

Dascanio said he had bought the revolver he was carrying from a stranger for 75 cents.

His Room Raided

In the suspect's rooms, police found a trunk containing revolver ammunition, a black mask, a number of rocks and other articles, the nature of which police would not disclose. There were double shades on the windows of the room. The key hole was plugged.

There were also newspapers from Youngstown, Pittsburgh and Wheeling describing the killings of the three steel men. They were other newspapers containing stories of the murder of Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago and the attempted assassination of President Roosevelt in Florida.

Reports of Serious Illness of Von Hindenburg, Aged President of Germany, Cause of Great Alarm

Van Hindenburg is at his estate at Neudeck, where he recently recovered from an illness. Details as to his present condition were not obtainable but his health is admittedly prevarious.

From Bayreuth, where Chancellor Hitler has established a temporary headquarters, came word that "a certain old gentleman is very ill."

A "major medical council" was sent to see von Hindenburg July 1, the day after Hitler's "purging" of Nazi ranks by execution of numerous leaders.

CAUSE OF CRASH OF BIG BALLOON IS NOT CERTAIN

Three Army Airmen are Anxious for Another Venture Into Space

BULLETIN.

Kearney, Neb., July 30.—(AP)— An investigation of the crash of the world's largest stratosphere balloon, "The Explorer," will be resumed in Washington, D. C., in a few days, officials in charge of the inquiry announced today. They seek the cause of the destruction of the balloon when its bag ripped and plunged precious instruments to earth.

The inquiry started yesterday behind closed doors in the Kearney Chamber of Commerce rooms.

Holdrege, Neb., July 30—(AP)— Three Army airmen who took to their parachutes to escape death in the crash of the world's largest balloon 12 miles northwest of here are eager for another venture into the stratosphere.

Captain Albert W. Stevens, scientific observer on the "Explorer" when it failed to reach more than 60,000 feet Saturday, said, however, another attempt to soar uncharted heights would not be possible before next May or June.

Major William E. Kepner, commander of the flight from Rapid City, S. D., to Reuben Johnson's cornfield—and co-pilots Captain Orvil A. Anderson and Captain Stevens were en route back to Rapid City today after an investigation, at Kearney, Neb., into the cause of the balloon's failure.

Instruments Destroyed

Stevens said May and June are the best months for stratospheric exploration, and that it would take considerable time to reconstruct the precious instruments destroyed when the gondola plunged to the earth, crashing like an egg.

The only instrument saved was the valuable spectrograph, which was sent immediately to the University of Rochester, New York. The salvage was loaded into a motor truck after the close of the investigation, and started for Washington, D. C.

Anxious to learn what caused the gas bag, which contained about

HORNER AGAINST ANY MORE SPECIAL ASSEMBLIES

Says Only Remedy for Tax Muddle Lies in Convention

Chicago, July 30.—(AP)— Governor Henry Horner announced today that he will not call a special session of the state legislature for consideration of measures to place ratification of a 1 per cent real estate tax limitation constitutional amendment to the November ballot.

The only real means for the people to reform their cumbersome taxing machinery, the governor said, is through the constitutional convention proposed for early next year, which will be put before the voters for ratification in November.

A limitation on real estate taxation such as has been demanded by Republican party groups and in resolutions of several organizations could be provided in the regular session next winter, without a constitutional amendment, the governor said.

To provide a real estate tax limitation at this time, said the governor, would throw all the local governments of the state in a chaotic condition similar to that which struck Cook county following the 1928 reassessment order.

TRIAL OF DOLLFUSS ASSASSIN BEGINS TONIGHT

Former Austrian Army Officer Confesses He Fired Shots

BULLETIN

Munich, July 30 —(AP)— Ordinarily reliable circles reported today that the death toll in Austria since the outbreak of hostilities last Wednesday was 600 persons.

BULLETIN

London, July 30 —(AP)— A reliable source sated tonight that the British government has learned that an official statement was issued in Berlin last Wednesday evening proclaiming the overthrow of Chancellor Dollfuss of Australia in "a great popular revolt x x x as important as it is welcome."

(Copyright, 1934, by The Associated Press.)

Vienna, July 30 —(AP)—Faced with death by hanging, Otto Planetta and Franz Holzweber went on trial at 6:15 P. M. tonight before a military court. Authorities said Planetta had confessed killing Chancellor Dollfuss and Holzweber was charged with directing the Nazi putsch which plunged Austria into civil war.

Their trial began as the new Austrian government, headed by Dr. Kurt Schuschnigg, the new chancellor moved to suppress Nazi revolutionists still operating in various sections of the country.

Both the accused men held their heads high and turned calm faces to their judges when they were led to the court.

One A Former Sergeant

Planetta, a former staff sergeant of the army, who is supposed to have said he killed because he had been dismissed from the army for Nazi sympathies, showed emotion slightly in his twisting hands.

Both wore ordinary civilian clothing but Planetta had on a prison shirt. The shoe laces of both men had been removed to prevent any attempt at suicide by strangling.

Although rumors that both prisoners had been beaten was circulated, neither of the two showed signs of ill-treatment. Both were sunburned and healthy-looking.

The trial had been expected to be held tomorrow but it was finally set for 4:30 P. M. When the defense lawyers complained that they had been notified only at 2:30, the trial was postponed to 6:15.

Claims Accident

The prosecutor said Planetta had confessed to firing the fatal shots but that he claimed it had been done unintentionally. He said the men who had taken part in the putsch in which Dollfuss was killed in the chancellery had agreed that there would be "no slaughter."

The trial was held in the same grim, grey court building in which a Socialist bomber was tried and executed on the day before the death of Dollfuss.

Although a crowd gathered outside during the bombers' trial there were no bystanders when today's trial began.

Meanwhile authorities moved ahead under the leadership of the new chancellor, to smash the stubborn resistance of Nazi groups still holding out against government forces in various sections of the country.

Expresses Sympathy

Frau Planetta, saddened by the arrest of her husband and the charge against him, spoke with sorrow of the grief of Dollfuss' widow.

"Frau Dollfuss, like myself, has lost the dearest thing she had on earth," she said. "I want to implore her to receive me; not to ask mercy for my husband, but to tell her how I sympathize with her. Above all, I do not want her to hate me."

Attacked Hospital

Forty Nazis early today raided the General Hospital in an unsuccessful effort to abduct Or. Anton Rintelen, former Austrian minister to Rome, who was found to be lying there, seriously wounded, despite the original report last Thursday that he had committed suicide.

Rintelen, known to have pro-Nazi leanings, was announced as "new chancellor" by the Nazis when they assassinated Chancellor Dollfuss last Wednesday. Rintelen was immediately arrested and the announcement was given out that he had shot himself fatally in jail.

Today, when the raiding party entered the hospital, a nurse notified the police, who arrived in time to capture several of the raiders. The rest escaped.

Because of the extraordinary measures of defense against a threatened Nazi putsch taken throughout the city last night, the General Hospital temporarily was left without its strong guard while police and Heimwehr members were concentrated around such stragetic public buildings as the war ministry and police headquarters.

Restoration rumors flared through the city again today with the arrival of unverified reports from Lacenburg, near Vienna, that the Hapsburg summer palace was being renovated prior to its reoccupation. It is to be recalled that the late Emperor Charles and the Empress Zita, mother of the Archduke Otto, spent some time there after the revolution of 1918.

ORGANIZING TO SECURE PASSAGE BIG BOND ISSUE

Must Pass in November or Real Estate Tax Will be Higher

In order to avert the collection in 1935 of a heavy additional state tax, estimated at about $0.63 per $100 assessed value, on all real estate and personal property in Illinois, organization of a campaign committee to secure adoption of the pending $30,000,000 emergency relief bond issue on November 6 was begun Friday afternoon at a meeting of representatives of many state-wide associations held in the Chicago bar association rooms.

The meeting approved the following statement, explaining that adoption of the bond will not add to the funds being used for relief work, but will merely provide a way of financing funds borrowed and already largely spent, without necessitating a heavy state property tax, and that the principal and interest on the bonds themselves will be paid from a part of the gas tax funds allocated to counties and municipalities of the state in proportion as they have received relief from these borrowed funds:

"It is deemed vitally necessary to organize a general committee to advise the voters of the importance of voting for the $30,000,000 bond issue on the separate "Emergency Relief Ballot," at the election, Nov. 6th.

Taxes Higher If Not Carried

"Unless this bond issue is approved by a majority of practically all those voting for candidates at that election, citizens throughout Illinois will pay in 1935, a tax of probably at least $0.63 per $100 assessed value on all real and personal property. This tax $38,000,000 in maximum amount already has been levied by the state legislature for the purpose of paying the state anticipation tax notes $28,500,000) and interest thereon which have been, and in the next four months will be, sold to provide the state funds being used this year for relief of the needy in Illinois. These anticipation notes and interest thereon will be paid from money raised by selling the proposed bond issue, provided, the pending bond proposition receives the required large popular majority. In that event the tax already levied (against which the relief money is borrowed) will not be extended in the 1934 tax bills, payable in 1935.

"If the bonds are approved, the amount required annually through a 20-year period for retirement of principal and payment of interest will be paid in equal amount from the gas tax allocations to each county and to the municipalities therein which have used relief funds supplied by this program in proportion to the amounts used in each such county and municipality for these relief funds.

"It should be emphasized that approval of this bond issue will not add one cent to the amount of funds available for relief in Illinois. The state funds for 1934 have been provided and are now largely expended. Neither does this committee's action in urging support of this bond issue imply either approval or disapproval of the particular plan used for supplying the necessary 1934 relief funds. Some of the groups composing this campaign committee supported the program before the special legislative session last fall, while others strenuously dissented.

"However, the only question before us and the rest of the voters of Illinois is: How shall we now pay back the money which has been borrowed and spent?

"We are all agreed that in fairness to the property taxpayers who are already heavily over-burdened a moral responsibility rests upon every citizen to vote for this bond issue and to urge his fellow citizens to do likewise."

zi-controlled Austrian cabinet has been discussed, the name of Bardoiff has cropped up as the possible ministed of war.

Under the leadership of Dr. Kurt Schuschnigg, newly - appointed Chancellor, the fourth cabinet within a week began its work. Dollfuss was still chancellor last Wednesday. For a few hours he was succeeded by Schuschnigg. He in turn yielded to Prince Ernest von Starhemberg as the acting chancellor. Now Schuschnigg is back in power.

He and his fellow ministers appeared before President Wilhelm Miklas in the early morning hours and took the oath of office, von Starhemberg again serving as vice chancellor.

Power Checkmated

While Schuschnigg has an army of Catholic storm troops, the semi-military organization which he leads, his vice chancellor could practically checkmate this power, by his own control of the police, gendarmerie, and large Heimwehr force.

That the Heimwehr, which is Fascist, does not propose to yield one iota of its power is indicated by two facts: first, the Tyrolese Heimwehr, in a manifesto, demanded that that green and white Heimwehr flag be made the second national emblem besides the present national colors of red, white and red, "as a token that our sacrifices have not been in vain;" second: Emil Fey, minister of security, in addressing the Vienna Heimwehr yesterday in the Dollfuss memorial declared, "if we want to carry out the Dollfuss testament we must preserve, extend, and, with an iron will, hold together the Heimwehr which is one of the strongest props of Austria. The Heimwehr and its leader, Prince von Starhemberg, still have great tasks to fulfill."

Can Be No Compromise

If Austria should give its agreement to the appointment of Franz von Papen, German vice chancellor, as minister to Vienna, it appeared likely that the would have no easy task for a Heimwehr man has been appointed foreign minister.

The new minister, Egon Berger-Waldenegg, is a strong supporter and subordinate of von Starhemberg who, in a speech Friday, declared emphatically that there can be no compromise with National Socialists (Nazism.)

If this attitude continues, obvious difficulties confront von Papen when, and if, he arrives as Chancellor Hitler's personal peacemaker.

While, on the whole, Sunday was observed as a day of rest by the warring factions in Austria, reports from the Yugoslav border indicated that trouble was still continuing there. At 4 A. M. a skirmish was reported at Andritz, near Graz, between Heimwehr men and mobile security police on one side and a group of insurgents, apparently composed of Nazis and Communists, on the other. The skirmish was short-lived, however. The guns of civil war which had cracked for fourteen days, are silent except in Carinthia, which borders Italy and Yugoslavia. There the Nazis occupy a stronghold and maintain their defiance of the Facism which they sought, following the assassination of the little chancellor, Engelbert Dollfuss, to overthrow.

No New Fighting.

No new fighting developed over the week-end, but authoritieh here were fearful of another Nazi attack—a putsch planned for last night which failed to develop.

Precautions have been redoubled and guns are everywhere in evidence.

The new government headed by Dr. Schuschnigg, 37 years old, and an ardent supporter of the martyred Dollfuss, is regarded at best as only a continuation of the compromise by which Dollfuss ruled.

Support of the powerful Heimwehr (Fascist home guard) was assured with Prince von Starhemberg, who temporarily led the nation following Dollfuss' death, again as vice chancellor and Major Fey, Heimwehr leader, minister of the interior.

Cheered By Monarchists.

The appointment of Schuschnigg by President Miklas was cheered by Monarchists ,with whom he has been identified, although he is a member of the Christian Social party.

(Monarchists were reported to have met over the week-end in Switzerland seeking a plan to place Archduke Otto, the Hapsburg pretender, on the throne.)

Although Schuschnigg is an outspoken legitimist, it is considered improbable he will take any step to further Otto's case while the international situation remains unchanged.

A pressing question of foreign policy before the reorganized cabinet is whether or not to agree to the appointment of Franz von Papen as special German envoy to Vienna.

Energetic steps by police and government troops to guard public buildings last night left the public apprehensive. The general police station was turned into a fortress, and barbed wire entanglements were placed around the chancellery.

Police Official Dead.

These preparations followed the death of a police official when he jumped or was thrown from the fourth story of police headquarters. He had been accused of participating in the Nazi putsch last Wednesday when the chancellery was seized and Dollfuss was killed.

Only isolated skirmishes in the provinces over the week-end were reported. Several power stations were dynamited. Unofficial estimates placed casualties in the revolution at 4,000.

Reports which caused alarm were circulated here, including one that Yugoslavian and Italian troops might meet on Austrian soil.

Some observers interpreted the fresh precautions to guard government buildings as an indication the situation is considered more alarming than ever.

Confusion between Heimwehr men and government troops has led to at least two skirmishes between them. An exchange of machine gun fire between these two pro-government forces at Graz Saturday night cost three lives.

Another burst of firing in a Graz suburb which lasted more than an hour was also due to misunderstanding. The Heimwehr men opened fire on a group of troops sent in to relieve them.

HOLD FUNERAL OF WALNUT MAN THIS AFTERNOON

Roy Norman, Elevator Man, Was Stricken Saturday Morn

Roy Norman, 53, owner and operator of the elevator at Normandy for the past 32 years, passed away at 6:20 o'clock Saturday morning in St. Margaret's hospital in Spring Valley where he had been a patient since May 27 of last year. Death was caused by a complication of diseases for which nothing could be done in the way of medical aid.

The funeral was held this afternoon from his late home in Walnut where he lived with his sister, Mrs. Ed Hammerle.

Roy Norman was born June 9, 1881 in Rutland, Illinois. He was the third son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Norman and moved with his parents to Walnut in 1895. He was graduated from the Walnut high school in 1897 and for the past 32 years had been successfully engaged in the elevator business in Normandy. When his health failed in the spring of 1933 he was forced to give up his business and in May entered the hospital at Spring Valley where he had been since confined.

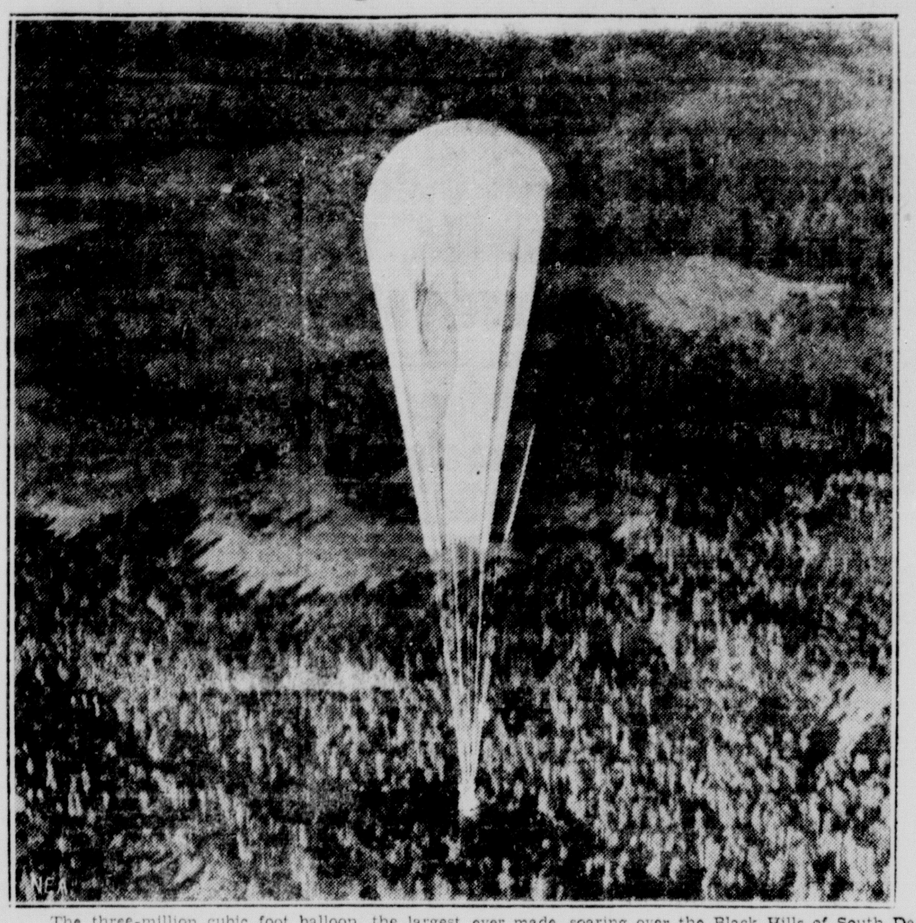

Besides his sister who made her home with him he leaves two brothers, Frank and Charles Norman, both of Winnebago, Minn. Mr. Norman was a member of the Masonic ledge in Walnut and of the Elks club in Sterling. He was well and favorably known throughout the state and he had hosts of friends who mourn his passing. He was a great lover of outdoor life and counted among his friends some of the best known sportsmen of the state. His interests entered into every kind of outdoor activity. He was a staunch Republican and his elevator was a gathering place of many friends, both personal and political.

MARIE DRESSLER TO HAVE SIMPLE RITES TOMORROW

Beloved Film Actress Passed Away Saturday Evening

Beverly Hills, Calif., July 30—(AP)—Only a few of the millions who knew Marie Dressler as a famous actress will attend her funeral tomorrow at Glendale.

The actress, who died Saturday at Santa Barbara after a long illness, will be buried in Forest Lawn Memorial Park following services in the Wee Kirk O' The Heather church.

Only intimate acquaintances of the 62-year-old actress will attend the simple, private services. Some of Hollywood's notables will be there, but the majority will be folk from the rank and file of the film industry, in which Miss Dressler attained her spectacular prominence long after what generally is considered the prime of life.

Friends Will Attend

There will be carpenters, prop men, stage hands, cameramen, scrip clerks, servants, old troupers of the stage and others who were close to Miss Dressler, addressed her as "Marie" and called her their friend.

The Rev. Neal Dodd, pastor of the church will officiate.

Jeanette MacDonald, soprano of screen and concert stage, will sing Miss Dressler's favorite hymn "Abide With Me." At the organ will be Catherine Lewis, who played for Miss Dressler on stage and on screen.

The studio for which Miss Dressler made her last picture—Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer—will be at a complete standstill during the services.

Girl Swimmer's Play Caused Death of Her Companions at Picnic

Waukegan, Ill., July 30—(AP)—A girl swimmer's playful antics were blamed today for the death of three of her companions.

The victims were James Keenan, 20; John Petrie, 19, and Miss Sylvia Thrush, 17, all of Chicago.

Dr. John L. Taylor Lake county Coroner, said he had information the three, and Jane Peifer, 19, and George Noesen 23, both rescued, had gone boat riding on Gages Lake, 10 miles west of here, on a parish outing, when the Peifer girl began diving from their rowboat.

At each dive, the boat shipped water, then suddenly turned over.

Their cries attracted the attention of lifeguards, but the three had sunk by the time of their arrival.

Fair Shows Half Million Profit; Receipts Gaining

Earl Mullin of the Chicago Tribune recently wrote: Nearly $5,500,000 has been spent, aside from admissions, by visitors at the World's Fair since the opening on May 26. In a financial report made public yesterday by Major Lenox R. Lohr, general manager, the Fair was shown to be solvent, and making an operating profit of almost half a million dollars.

Generally speaking, both in income and attendance figures, the 1934 exposition at the present time is running 76.5 per cent of the 1933 exposition. Ten days ago the ratio was only 72 per cent, a rise in proportions which has encouraged the Fair officials.

As of July 20 the total attendance was 4,577,841. Of this number 2,469,397 represented visitors who made a payment at the gate. The balance 2,107,841 represented advance sales.

Children's Fares Averaged

Admissions collected at the gate total $922,873.50, making an average gate admission of 37 cents. This includes the unprecedented attendance of the first children's day when 470,000 admissions were registered. The majority of them were children's tickets sold for five cents and, due to the rush at the gates, more than a hundred thousand entered without paying admissions.

The money for the advance sales all 50 cent admissions, is not included in the figures. This money was discounted before the opening of the fair.

Inside the grounds, visitors have spent $4,457,698.35 at the concessions. Of this sum $927,170 has been paid over to the Fair under its percentage contracts. In addition to the concessions figure, approximately a million dollars has been spent within the concessions. Of the latter sum the fair gets no percentage, the money representing sub-concessions on which there is no precise accounting.

Visitors Spend $1.19

In the case of the villages the fair gets 25 per cent of the gate admissions, but all sales within the villages accrue solely to the village corporations. On the basis of the concessions money in which the fair shares the average spent per visitor is 97 cents. Adding the million dollars spent within the concessions the average is increased to $1.19 per visitor.

The operating profit of the fair has been $440,391, according to Major Lohr's report. The profit represents only money above the current expenses, and does not take into account interest on fixed indebtedness and other fixed overhead.

At the present time the fair has corporate funds amounting to $1,165,652.09 in the bank, with additional money collected for concessionaires and exhibitors which brings the total cash on hand to $1,698,000.

Wales Accepts Presidency for Empire

Those in Dixon and vicinity who are members of the English Speaking Union, will be interested in the announcement (which appeared in London press dispatches on June 19th and is amplified in the July Landmark) that His Royal Highness The Prince Of Wales has consented to serve as President of the English-Speaking Union of the British Empire, is welcomed by our national American society with gratification and enthusiasm. First, because the Prince is so popular in America by virtue of his winning personality. Second, because his acceptance shows what great importance is attached to the whole E.-S. U. movement. Third, because as a young man himself he represents youth, and his leadership of this movement on the British side will go far toward enlisting young men and women more actively in this cause throughout English-speaking lands.

YOUR CHILD AND THE SCHOOL

By Dr. ALLEN G. IRELAND

Director, Physical and Health Education, New Jersey State Department of Public Instruction

Summer Visiting

Here we have one antidote for that familiar evil, being tied to mother's "apron strings."

If a grandfather or an uncle has a farm, look upon that fact as the greatest good fortune, provided an invitation for the child to visit is forthcoming. Accept by return mail, lest you begin to feel sorry for yourself over the thought of being separated from your child.

Think of what a wonderful thing it will be for the boy or the girl! A chance to get out of the rut and into a new world of experience. If development could be measured, mothers would be astounded by what happens to a child during a short visit away from home. And it's surprising too how well a child behaves while visiting, so don't fret over that.

It's equally silly to imagine all kinds of danger. If you trust the hosts, whether relatives or friends, seize the opportunity to do your boy or girl one of the biggest favors of childhood, let him get a little taste of meeting life on his own.

Avoiding summer mishaps is not difficult with proper precautions, as Dr. Ireland will explain in his next article.

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"What can we do about daylight-saving time and bed time? They just don't click at all."

It is every mother's plaint these days, especially when a hot wave hits us and upstairs bedrooms are lick furnaces.

So what? Is little Carrie to smother in her crib from six o'clock on? The sun at six in these parts is still more than three hours from its own bedtime. Is William to climb in at seven and yell for drinks until all hours until his mother is at her wits' end dragging up and down and telling him he must go to sleep?

I happen to be one who cannot sleep when I am too hot. Heat makes people nervous and I am one. Therefore I know how children feel who toss for two or three hours on a hot evening before sleep rescues them.

Postponing Bedtime

Naturally then, I think it permissible to postpone bedtime a bit during the long heated days of midsummer.

Of course, it all depends. If you live in a suburb that cools off in the evening, or in the country where it gets real chilly, it makes a difference. The children's bedtime need make little concession to summer when conditions are right, or even to daylight-saving time which lengthens the day still more. Always and always children have had to "go to sleep by day in summer" as the little poem says.

It is the combination of too great heat and light that permits some change in regimen, I think.

Not long ago I was in a cool living-room visiting some young parents in the family.

Upstairs the baby was crying, and her big three-year-old brother was crying, to. It was very hot up there.

Rescued From Heat

With permission I went up to have a look-see, or rather a peep-see. It was simply suffocating in those two rooms.

Without more ado I picked up the baby, carried her downstairs, spread some cool papers on the living-room floor and laid her there. Then I went through a like "habeas corpus" with the boy. This time I dragged down two sheets and a pillow, spreading these in the cool, dark dining-room. Then I folded the delighted young MaGrew away.

Both went contentedly to sleep, later to be carried upstairs when night breezes had cooled off their rooms to a decent temperature.

This is not intended to set a precedent. I know not where you live, your particular climate, or the lie of your house. Drafts, doors, windows, are best understood by the individual mother. Also the age and condition of her own children.

Use Judgment

But try to figure it all out and do what seems safe and sensible at the moment. Routine once broken is hard to re-establish, but when it comes to actual misery, some concessions do have to be made. In summer we have to summon every good ounce of judgment we possess to keep children comfortable and well.

Beds should be flat and under sheets should be drawn tight. Wrinkles only make it hotter. On hot nights pull beds away from the wall to allow for a circulation of air.

I don't advise floors, although I saw fit to use them on this one occasion. But it all goes to show that signs fail in roasting hot weather. Do what seems best.

New Books at Dixon Library

Conquest of Tibet—Hedin—All is adventure, action, a tald told as unaffectedly as if one were listening to Hedin himself in the courts of his Peiping headquarters where on summer nights gallant young Swedes and Germans and Chinese of his present expedition love to draw him into reminiscence of his days of single-handed enterprise. One of Hedin's most endearing qualities is his perpetual youth and unabated zest. He never becomes pompous or pedantic. The spirited black and white drawings by the author himself give more life and vigor in the way of illustration than could any photographs.

And Quiet Flows The Don—Sholokhov—The author has centered his story about the person of Greogr Melekhov, a young Cossack. His life in the home of his father, his wild carousing, his unhappy marriage, his impassioned love affair with a neighbor's wife, his military adventures, and his fortunes in the Revolution, compose a magnificent novel.

Death In The Quarry — Cole—Superintendent Wilson, Scotland Yard's greatest trouble-shooter, faces the most baffling of his cases in this absorbing book. Follow him along the tangled rails that led from a crushed body in the torn rocks of a quarry explosion through the note meant to clear the way to a lovers' tryst that was a death warrant instead into the terrible unknown world of a murderer's mind.

Invincible Louisa—Meigs—Readers of "Little Women" and the other Alcott books in which Miss Alcott revealed part of her life will welcome the complete story of her eventful life. Writing primarily for young people Miss Meigs herself beloved as the author of books for boys and girls tells in her delightful style of Invincible Louisa's dauntless battle for achievement. A Newberry prize book.

They're All "Beach Club Girls" But How Times—And Styles—Have Changed!

Here they are—"Beach Club Girls" of 1900, 1910 and 1934 respectively, all ready to frolic in the waves and possibly even do a little swimming.

three acres of fabric, to rip as it swung over Nebraska, the balloonists and scientists have given most of their time to a study of the wreckage.

Investigators Silent

After an all day hearing at Kearney yesterday behind closed doors, those who conducted the investigation declined to make any announcement. The broken "mechanical brains" were sent to the National Georgraphic Society office at Washington.

Captain Anderson advanced the theory that the fabric used below the diaphragm was too light. He said that instead of two-ounce material, three or four-ounce fabric should have been used.

Captains Stevens had a different opinion. He believed the fabric strong enough, but that local strains on the peculiarly shaped bag and the method by which it unfolded probably were responsible for the rips which cased the airmen to seek a landing before they were able to reach the bag's maximum altitude.

The balloon took off at Rapid City shortly after daylight Saturday and soared as it was carried on a southeasterly direction. East of North Platte, Neb. the big bag tore below the diaphragm, and then several small holes appeared in that part of the fabric.

Tried "To Pet Her Down"

The airmen, upon discovery of a tear at least 30 feet long, decided they should start down They attempted to drop less than 300 feet a minute to avoid any surges in the fabric, and tried "to pet her down"in the hope of escaping the parachute descent.

On reaching the 8,000 foot level another rip occurred, and the whole bottom of the bag tore out. The balloon then was a perfect parachute and began floating down about 800 feet a minute.

"We no longer had a balloon, only a parachute," Captain Anderson said, "and we couldn't help matters by staying in the gondola. So we agreed to bail out to lighten the load and hoped thereby to slow the descent to avoid the crash.

Gondola Burst Open

"I bailed out at 3,000 feet above the ground, and then the balloon disappeared. Stevens and Kepner followed, abandoning the ship at 1,500 feet or lower.

"The gondola plunged to earth, bursting open as it struck the ground."

Stevens narrowly escaped death in getting free of the gondola. He was unable to get out of the portHole on two attempts because of air pressure. On the third attempt he plunged into space and pulled the rip cord.

When the parachute opened it was struck by the falling balloon, but the bag glanced off and did not entangle him. The gondola then dropped like a shot.

BULLETS DO NOT VOTE IN A DEMOCRACY.

However great the weakness of democracy may seem in a time of crisis it is hard to escape the bloody troubles of Europe today arise in large part because of the denial of democracy.

Austria, swept by the repercussions of an assassination ominously similar to that of Franz Ferdinand 20 years ago, is simply the most recent example.

For the underlying cause of such disorders is the fact that ordinary democratic processes have been suspended. Racked and torn by cross-currents of passion, resentment, and despair that have been in the making ever since the war, the central European peoples have no way of expressing themselves but with guns.

Germany furnished an object lesson a few weeks ago.

Discontent with the way the Nazi policies were working out came to a head and demanded expression. No peaceful means of expression was possible.

Men could not argue their cause, they could not propagandize by means of newspapers and magazines, they could not look forward to a chance to use ballots. The machine gun and the revolver became their only recourse—and so, inevitably, the government had to use the same implements in replying to them.

Now it is Austria's turn, and the same kind of thing happens. Instead of a political campaign, with speeches, pamphlets, advertisements, and so on, there must be a "putsch," with bombs, gunfire, assassinations, and all the rest. There is no other possible outlet for discontent.

One does not need to look at these tragic happenings very long to get a new realization of the inestimable value of democracy.

Democracy has its weaknesses, to be sure—great and glaring, some of them, from which we often pay a heavy price.

But it does provide a safety valve for public discontent. It does make it possible for people to get rid of a government, a party, or a policy which they do not like, in peaceful and orderly way. It lets every man have his say about the state of affairs about him; it makes the appeal to force unnecessary.

We need to keep this constantly in mind. There are people in this country who profess an admiration for dictatorship—whether proletarian, Fascist, or whatnot—on the ground that democracy is inefficient and unwieldy.

One look at the woes of Germany and Austria is enough to show that democracy's benefits are almost infinitely greater than its drawbacks.

CAUSE FOR TROUBLE.

Down in New York City, there is a gentleman who has made millions out of strikes. For years he has been supplying big industrialists with strike-breakers, and the business has been a profitable one. And while the present era has put a lot of business his way, he doesn't like the looks of the signs of portents.

"I've been in this business a long time," he says. "I'm no chicken. I've made millions breaking strikes in this country. There's plenty of trouble ahead. . . . We're going to be lucky if we save this country from a revolution."

It is probable that this gentleman is taking an unduly pessimistic view of the situation. But it might be added that if the workers of America ever do get into a revolutionary mood, one of the prime causes will be the activities of the men who make a business of supplying professional thugs to act as strike-breakers, guards and strong-arm men in industrial disputes.

FAREWELL, MARINES!

Within the next fortnight or so, the last American marines will be leaving the island of Haiti—and neither the Haitians, the American public, nor the marines themselves will feel very badly about it if they never go back.

The marines have been on the island for many years. Their greatest strength there was in May, 1921, when more than 2000 of all ranks were concentrated there. This spring and summer the number had shrunk to approximately 750; and now, because of the new understanding reached between the American and Haitian governments, it is shrinking to nothing at all.

It is good to see the marines leaving. The island's situation was very tangled indeed when they first landed, and they did a lot of very excellent work; but in the end the Haitians must work out their own salvation as an independent state, and they can't do that until the last American marine has gone home.

OUTLAW'S FAREWELL.

Before the case of John Dillinger lapses into obscurity, it is worth while to have a final glance at the verdict of the coroner's jury which examined into his death. The verdict reads as follows:

"John Dillinger came to his death from the wounds of bullets fired from a revolver or revolvers, all in the hands of one or more government agents. The agents are to be highly commended for their efficient participation in the occurrence."

In its laconic brevity and salty expressiveness, this verdict has a tang not unlike those which used to be recorded in the wild west of frontier days. It tells the whole story in two sentences. Short and grim, it is a fitting epitaph for a gunman.

Make the world a fit and proper place for children and they will be born.—Prof. F. Crew, British biologist.

Harrison Tells of News on Side Streets of N. York

(By PAUL HARRISON)

New York, July 30 —(Special)— If our contemporary celebrities want to do handsomely by posterity, and especially by future generations of autograph collectors, they had better be sitting down and dashing off, by hand, a lot of letters which some day may be described in catalogues as historical documents.

Holographs, which are handwritten and signed letters, are becoming rare, and the typewriter is responsible for it. For example, Herbert Hoover and Warren Harding holographs already are worth twice as much as those of Jefferson, Madison or Monroe. For that matter, a Mrs. Harding is as valuable as a Dolly Madison.

After writing about amateur autograph collectors, the other day, I decided to find out how the professionals are getting along. They are prospering. Prices are not so fancy as in the boom days when Dr. A. S. Rosenbach paid $51,000 for a Button Gwinnett, but the demand is steady. Many people who are not collectors buy letters of certain statesmen, soldiers and authors whom they greatly admire. Napoleon and Lincoln are the best sellers in that category. Signed bits of literary and musical manuscripts are popular. Edgar Allen Poe sold "The Raven" for $10, and the manuscript itself is now worth $200,000.

HISTORY LESSON—

Incidentally, I learned at the autograph shop of Thomas Madigan, the biggest concern of its kind in the country, that Button Gwinnett signatures no longer are the rarest of those to be found on the Declaration of Independence. Thomas Lynch, Jr., left fewer writings. Benjamin Franklin provided a lot of collectors' items. One letter I saw revealed that in 1763, having lived in England five years, he was so fond of the country, that he intended to live there if he could "persuade the good woman to cross the seas." If "the good woman" had crossed the seas as Dr. Franklin wanted, the whole history of America might have been very different.

Madigan has a large assortment of military and naval heroes; it seems that some collectors specialize in them, though many of the names are ones you've seldom hard of. Usually the letter of a private describing a battle is more valuable than an uninteresting note from a general. Letters of Pickett and Custer bring good prices, but General Lee wrote so many letters that they are worth only about $25. Pershings are now quoted at $7.50 to $10. Letters of the ex-Kaiser are in good demand; Ludendorff signatures sell for about $20.

AMONG THE MODERNS—

Of modern-time celebrities, the prices are pretty low. The highest figure ever paid for a letter of a living person is $500, for a George Bernard Shaw, but there are other Shavian items for as little as $25. King George and Queen Mary have kept their signatures out of circulation with fair success, but you can get a Prince of Wales autograph on a menu card or a theater program for $10 or $15. Lindbergh letters sell for $25 and up, but if he would sit down and write in longhand about one of his historic flights the holograph would be extremely valuable. A typed letter signed by Franklin D. Roosevelt brings only $3.50. A Sinclair Lewis holograph is listed at $7.50.

For $125 you can get an interesting letter written by Harding during his campaign for the Senate. It reads "Gentlemen If you can ship me five or ten thousand cases on the night of the 4th, please consider this an order."

Some days ago I mentioned that an attorney for Eugene O'Neill threatened suit against anyone who sold or permitted publication of any of his letters. The autograph people are annoyed by this attitude, and have only one explanation to account for it. They think some letters must have been stolen from the dramatist—letters which he is anxious to keep out of circulation.

"Into the Meanies camp I will sneak. Perhaps I'll get a chance to speak to Scouty. If he's captured, I am sure he can be found."

The Tinymites began to rave, "We'll give you credit. You are brave, but it is very dangerous. You'd better stay right here."

This didn't stop wee Dotty though. "I have made up my mind to go," said she. And then she started out, with no real thought of fear.

It wasn't very long until the little lass got quite a thrill. By crawling very carefully, she reached a great big tree.

"This is as far, now, as I dare to go. There's Scouty, in a chair," said she. "I wish I had a chance to set the poor boy free."

The big gumdrops that had been thrown into the camp made wee Scouty groan, "I'm hungry. Kindly let me have a fine gumdrop to eat."

"What? Eat these things?" a Meany said. "There is something wrong, lad, with your head." "Oh no," replied wee Scouty. "They're really quite a treat."

Another Meany cried, "I'll bet he is fooling, but we're going to let him have a chance to prove he is right. Let's give him some.

"We'll feed him, 'cause his hands are tied." And, when he'd had one Scouty cried, "Oh, that was good. Bring on some more. You see, I'm not so dumb."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Truth" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 29.

The Golden Text was, "Lead me in thy truth, and teach me: for thou art the God of my salvation; on thee do I wait all the day" (Psalms 25:5).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "O send out thy light and thy truth: let them lead me; let them bring me unto thy holy hill, and to thy tabernacles" (Psalms 43:3).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Truth and Love enlighten the understanding, in whose 'light shall we see light;' and this illumination is reflected spiritually by all who walk in the light and turn away from a 'false material sense'" (p. 510).

Daily Health Talk

PROSTATISM: II

Enlargement of the prostate, causing appreciable difficulty in the voiding of urine, is a condition which calls for competent and adequate medical and surgical treatment. Unless this condition is relieved, it is bound to progress and cause increasing damage to the urinary system and the general health of the individual.

When the flow of urine from the bladder is obstructed, it may not be completely emptied. There is therefore what is known as retention of urine in the bladder. The various portions of the urinary system are irritated and infection may develop.

When retention of urine is marked, the patient, if he desires to prolong his life and to have some degree of well-being, must submit himself to treatment. The treatment usually consists in some form of operation. When the patient has reached this stage of his prostatism, a refusal of operation and self-neglect lead speedily to grief. The urinary system is concerned with the elimination of body wastes. The accumulation of these wastes, as must of necessity result when the kidneys are damaged, will first undermine health and later cause death.

It is in order that complications might be avoided and that the kidneys be conserved that operation for prostatism must be urged. Surgical treatment in this condition is usually not quite as much of a matter of emergency as, say, an operation for appendicitis, but in many instances time is the very essence of treatment.

The prostatic man must so regulate his life that he does not overexpose himself or overdo. Particularly must he beware of "congestion." Thus, he must avoid all exposure to cold and avoid wetting his feet. His clothing, especially his underwear and his footgear, must be suitable to the weather. The patient must drink plenty of water, five to eight glasses a day, and he does not go on a diet in which the meats are few and fruits and vegetables prominent.

Living Our Everyday Lives

OUR BELIEFS

(By Dr. Joseph Fort Newton.)

Does it matter what we believe if our life is right? As well ask: Does it matter what air we breathe or what food we eat?

The question, as asked, implies that beliefs are notions of cranky or credulous minds, and do not influence life. Some beliefs, to be sure, are of that sort, and as such they do not matter in the least.

But every deeply felt belief is bound to influence not only our attitude of mind, but our acts. What a man practically believes—that is, lays to heart and acts upon—creatively determines his life. If he does right it must be because he believes in the right, and that he is bound by it. Back of his life lies a profound belief, the best belief of all, though he may not have worked it out logically.

Our beliefs are not logical mixtures, not the result of arguments dressed up and drilled before our eyes. They are intimate, inward things, made up of a thousand influences for which we have no name. Birth and training, insights, memories, leanings, longings, and echoes from the past, aspirations for the future—all blend with our reasoning process, making the warp and woof of our beliefs woven into our life.

The faith that purity is better than impurity, that honor is nobler than dishonor, that truth is holier than lies, is vital both for the making of character and the conduct of life, as all must agree.

If a man comes down on the wrong side of such issues, we suspect not only his brains, but a moral bias or blindness in him, whatever his gifts may be. If he uses blinkers in such beliefs, he will use them in his acts. Such basic beliefs matter profoundly for each man of us.

In reaction against what it deems the over-beliefs of other days, our generation has fallen into an under-belief. No man is so tempted to believe too little as the man who began by believing too much.

What we need is not faith in more things, but more faith in a few profound things. We are moved most deeply not by the many things we try to believe, but by the real things we cannot deny.

SARATOGA RACE MEET TO START WITH FLOURISH

Flash Stakes for Two-Year-Olds Feature of Opening Day

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., July 30 (AP)—With the nation's greatest thoroughbreds the magnet, this little summer resort on the frings of the Adirondack mountains had grown from a town of 13,000 to a thriving metropolis of 50,000 today as eleven picked two-year-olds sought the major share of the $3,500 purse in the Flash Stakes at the opening of the 30-day meeting.

Crowded Broadway, a scarcity of desirable rooms and well filled barns out at the compact oval on Union avenue augured well for the first meeting under legalized betting here in 26 years.

As usual the two-year olds far outnumbered the others for it is at the Spa that the juvenile championship is usually decided in the numerous stakes for the youngsters, topped by the $40,000 Hopeful on the final day, September 1.

Cavalcade Works Out

Mrs. Dodge Sloane's Cavalcade, three-year-old champion, arrived from Chicago and got down to work in preparation for his engagement in the $30,000 Travelers August 18. C. V. Whitney's Equipoise, handicap champion, has been getting the feel of the track for several days and if his injured hoof doesn't cause any more trouble he will be kept busy in an effort to catch Sun Beau, the world's leading money winner.

There is a chance that Equipois and Cavalcade will match strides for the first time at the meeting. Both are eligible for the Saratoga Cup, a test of one and three-quarter miles, which will be run on the final day.

For the Flash Stakes today, Mrs. Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Try Sympathy, winner of the Hyde Park Stakes at Arlington Park, was the 12 to 5 choice to lead the field over the five and one half furlongs.

RUNYAN VICTOR IN PRO TOURNEY AFTER 38 HOLES

Former Ark. Caddy Beat Craig Wood in Putting Contest

Park Club, Buffalo, N. Y., July 30—(AP)—Paul Runyan, whose introduction to golf consisted of chasing balls for four bits an hour, ruled the American professional ranks today.

Doing it the hard way, the 26-year-old former Arkansas caddy conquered Craig Wood, the belting beauty of Hollywood, N. J., one up, in a putting duel yesterday over the short park course.

The 38-hole final tied the record for extra-hole finals in the 17-year-old tournament, matching the 38-hol battle of 1923, when Gene Sarazen won from Walter Hagen. It also marked the second time that Wood had come close to a major title. Last year he was denied the British open title in an extra inning battle with Denny Shute.

The most important point of the whole show was that the little 130-pound Runyan—for four years a thorn in the side of the game's big shots—had arrived. Over the 1933-34 winter barnstorming campaign he won $7,000 and his victory yesterday netted him another $1,000 with the title ultimately estimated to be worth $15,000.

GOLF

Harry Vardon discovered one of the most important parts of the golf swing after a careful study of many photographs It is the action of the left leg.

After the pivot has been made, the left knee points toward the ball, and not toward the other knee. The left leg aids in firmly supporting the weight on the right, the pressure being on the ball of the foot and not on the toe.

84 Amateurs Enter Publinx Tournament at Pittsburgh Club

Pittsburgh, July 30—(AP)—Sharpshooters from the public fairways start today in quest of the national public golf championship.

One hundred and 84 niblick-wielders—all amateurs, naturally—are entered in the annual tournaments. It is the second largest field in the 13 years of the event, 216 having entered the classic in 1932 at Louisville, Ky.

California has sent the largest delegation of all—29, including Charles Ferrera, San Francisco's ex-caddy, defending the crown.

Thirty-nine other cities also are represented, including Pittsburgh with Carl Kauffmann, the only man to hold the public title three years.

South Park, the tourney scene, owned by Allegheny county, is a long 6,590-yard, par-72 layout.

The contestants will go 18 holes today and tomorrow to qualify for the match play.

TIGERS REGAIN LEAD WITH AID FROM ATHLETICS

Macks Trimmed Yankees as Detroit Split Double Header

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

The Detroit Tigers regained the American League lead over the past week-end and picked up the margin of a full game over the Yankees. They got into the "goofiest" sort of an affair in the first half of yesterday's bill with the White Sox. Leading 5-0 going into the fifth, they fell behind when the hose scored six runs. The stunt was repeated in the seventh, Chicago scoring seven times to gain a 13-11 lead and finally Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, who had pitched a three-hit game the day before, was called in to check the Sox' eighth inning rally and won another decision for himself by belting a home run to put the Tigers on the right side of a 16-15 score.

The second game was a different tale when Les Tietje outpitched Fred Marberry to give Chicago a 6-4 victory.

Athletics Assisted.

The Athletics came to Detroit's aid by smashing the Yanks down into 6-3 defeat as they put on a five run inning behind Alton Benton's six-hit flinging.

The third-place Indians registered the day's big gain when they twice defeated St. Louis, 11 to 5 and 6 to 3, and placed themselves 5½ games behind the lead. Cleveland collected 22 hits, Sammy Hale and Earl Averill contributing a circuit swat apiece to each game, while the Browns were given only eleven blows. The double defeat dropped St. Louis to seventh place, two points behind Washington, as the Senators' game with Boston was rained out.

The National League's Sunday program brought several shifts in the standing but none of them bore upon the New York-Chicago battle for the lead as both the top-ranking clubs divided bills. The Giants dropped the opener to the Phillies 4 to 2, with Dolph Camilli's homer as the deciding blow, but came back to win 2 to 0 when Carl Hubbell broke his three game losing streak by holding the Phils to four hits in a duel with Syl Johnson.

Cubs Split Even.

The Cubs reversed the order. They almost ruined Chuck Dressen's debut as Cincinnati manager by trimming the Reds 7 to 5 in a free hitting contest which saw Pat Malone as a more effective flinger than Si Johnson. Cincinnati saved the afterpiece, 4 to 2, as Chick Hafey swatted a homer at the right time to help Tony Freitas out.

The third-place Cardinals bumped Pittsburgh around 9 to 5 with a 16-hit attack, featured by Jim Collins 23rd circuit swat. That decision, coupled with Boston's brilliantly pitched double victory over Brooklyn, put the Bucs in fifth place behind the Braves. At the same time the Dodgers dropped back of the Phils into seventh.

After winning the opener 5-2 behind Ed Brandt's seven-hit hurling, the Braves got the benefit of a one-hit game by Flint Rhem and won 1 to 0, when Pinky Whitney drove home Randy Moore with the only run young Johnny Babich allowed.

Interesting Names on Fight Schedule for Current Week

New York, July 30 —(AP)—The fight picture over the country is peppered with interesting names for this week's action, but there's scarcely any significance at all to the lineup.

Tommy Loughran and Johnny Risko meet at Freeport, L. I., on Wednesday night in a ten round bout for charity made possible by Loughran's interest in a parochial school there. Maxey Rosenbloom, light heavyweight champion, tackles Lee Ramage again at Los Angeles Tuesday, but without putting his title in jeopardy. Barney Ross, lightweight and welterweight champion, boxes a four round exhibition on a lightweight card in Chicago tonight.

Probably the best fighting card has been scheduled for Philadelphia tonight where Frankie Klick of California, one of the outstanding lightweight challengers, meets Cleto Locatelli, Italian champion.

DOLLFUSS RITES HELD AMID RIOT OF BRILLIANCE

Thousands Paid Their Tribute to Murdered Chancellor

(Copyright, 1934, by The Associated Press)

Vienna July 30—The spirit of the assassinated Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss was invoked Saturday by Arting Chancellor Ernst von Starhemberg to plead before the throne of God for Austria's independence, as thousands lined up before the Vienna city hall to pay their last honor to the martyred chancellor

Other hundreds of thousands lined the streets throug which his body was carried. Millions of persons in every quarter of the world listened to the broadcast of the funeral exercises.

"I am not saying farewell to you, beloved leader, comrade and friend," declared the tall Von Starhemberg at the casket of his little predecessor, "for, as a Catholic, I know that only that which is mortal of you will perish. You will continue to live.

"Already, you have entered the proud history of our fatherland.

"I implore you to be our mediator before the throne of God, the all highest."

In Riot of Color

A riot of color, which except for the abundant black crepe in evidence everywhere, almost belied the sorrow of the Austrian nation and made the picturesque square before the city hall seem almost as though it were adorned for a joyous occasion.

Scores of candle lights around the catafalque, bright white-red cloth in which the coffin was wrapped, the natty blue uniforms of the members of the old imperial army, the gay bluish-grey of the Heimwehr men, the gold dress uniforms of the diplomats—among whom George S. Messersmith United State minister, in his plain cutaway looked conspicuously democratic—the field grey of the regular army, and the purple and gold robes of the clergy: all presented a picture in the midst of which the gently sobbing and desolate Frau Alwine Dollfuss, clinging to the arm of Von Starhemberg, seemed confused and bewildered.

President Attends

Shortly before the funeral exercises began, President Wilhelm Miklas arrived in the presidential automobile to be greeted deferentially by high government officials.

He was soon followed by a procession of 13 army motor trucks heaped high with the floral tributes that had arrived from every part of Austria.

Promptly at 2:30 P. M. a chorus assisted by a brass band chanted a dirge.

Thousands of watching Austrians wept freely as the bronze casket was borne at the finish of the long funeral procession.

Even the foreign diplomats present, inured to funerals of state, gave vent to their emotions, but Frau Dollfuss, who entered the cathedral supported by Acting Chancellor von Starhemberg and Fritz Stockinger, minister of commerce, was dry-eyed.

Only the privileged could enter the sombre Gothic cathedral of St. Stephen to hear Theodore Cardinal Innitzer pronounce the funeral oration. He spoke with great emotion of the hopes which had animated the chancellor May 1 when he attended a service there which he hoped would mark the beginning of a new era in Austrian history.

Commoners Grieve

The common people outside, along the route which the procession had taken from the city hall, were not ashamed of their grief. Tears rolled down weather-beaten faces. Peasants and the women of all classes sobbed as the procession passed.

Two old peasants, clad in simple black, had a place of honor in the procession. They were the parents of Dollfuss, the man who rose from humble birth to be dictator of a nation.

With them was a group of fellow-villagers, relatives of the slain man. They remembered the man they honored as one undistinguished in his youth, save by his small statute and great piety.

The obviously sincere grief manifested by the population was regarded as a greater tribute to his personality and charm because most of those who saw the procession had held opposite views on his policies.

Connie Mack's Men Peeved at Wh. Sox

Philadelphia, July 31 —(AP)— The Athletics, in a round-about way, are a trifle peeved at the White Sox.

It develops that the Yankees wanted to send Jimmy Deshong back to the minors for more seasoning, but the White Sox would not waive on him. So Joe McCarthy started pitching him, and he took his fourth straight Saturday, allowing the Athletics one lone hit.

RESTORATION OF AUSTRIAN MONARCHY IS SOUGHT

Friends of Archduke Otto Reported Back of New Movement

Lucerne, Switzerland, July 30 —(AP)— Austrian and Hungarian monarchists are reported to be drafting a plan to pull a throne for Archduke Otto out of the troubled politics of Vienna.

Supporters of the Hapsburg Archduke — unconfirmed reports said today—met secretly over the week end at Vitzneau to form a plan for restoration acceptable to Italy, France, England and the Little Entente. Secret agents of foreign powers, these sources said, were called into the conference.

Col. Randa of the Austrian army and Felix Dunkel, Austrian monarchist, and Count Hojos, Hungarian and intimate friend of Otto, are said to be leaders in the movement.

Their first object is to obtain the approval of Premier Mussolini of Italy.

Count Czerny, attached to the household of Otto, pretender to the Austrian throne, in Belgium refused to confirm or deny reports the Archduke had received numerous visitors lately.

"I am not allowed either to deny or confirm this or any other reports," he said, "as I have received strict orders against giving out any information whatsoever."

Texas Youth Won Shenecosset Cup

New London, Conn., July 31 —(AP)— Nineteen-year-old Jack A. Munger, the drawling Texan from Dallas, went back to Boston today to see how his mother was getting along after a recent operation there, and he took with him the Shenecosset golf cup, two records and the knowledge that he was mighty close to a third.

Munger raced here from Boston last week from his mother's bedside in time to win the medal in the 15th annual play with a subpar 70. Yesterday he won the 36-hole final from Norman Lyman of Darien, Conn., by the widest margin in the history of the tournament, 13 and 12. He is also the youngest player ever to win the cup.

Davenport Ex-Broker Appeals Conviction on Charge of Fraud

Washington, July 30 —(AP)—D. A. Dorr, former Davenport, Iowa, securities dealer, had on file with the United States supreme court today an appeal from his conviction in connection with the failure of his firm, the D. A. Dobry Securities Company.

Dobry was sentenced to five years in prison and find $3,000 for violating the Iowa laws by making a statement alleged to be false concerning the financial condition of his company.

Dobry contends the trial judge gave improper instructions as to the meaning of the word "false" as used in the law, insisting it should have been interpreted as meaning knowingly false. He said he had no knowledge of the contents of the statement at the time he signed it and had no part in its preparation.

Much Can Be Said in a Few Words

It is said that an old-time editor, while instructing a cub reporter in brevity, claimed the story of Creation could be written in 500 words. Few can match the trained newspaper writer in avoiding surplus wordage, but any of us can talk easily and forcefully about our business. And nearly 400 words can be spoken over the telephone within the initial rate period of an out-of-town call. (That invaluable business person, the stenographer, types 60 to 70 words a minute. And that's speed!) A surprising amount of business may be done in a three-minute telephone call. Almost any detail of business may be discussed and settled quickly. In handling sales, purchases, production, distribution, or administration—much ground can be covered in a brief, personal conversation. And the cost—always moderate wherever you call.

DIPLOMATIC BATTLE TO PREVENT ANSCHLUSS SEEN

French Officials Viewing Von Papen Appointment With Alarm

Paris, July 30 —(AP)— A battle of diplomacy to prevent negotiations between Chancellor Hitler of Germany and the successor to Chancellor Dollfuss of Austria for a union of Germany and Austria was foreseen today by French officials.

The danger of a new Nazi campaign of diplomatic persuasion for an Austro-Germany alliance entirely through a customs union would be revived, said authorities, if the new Austrian government accepts Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen as Germany's Minisetr to Austria.

Although Chancellor Schuschnigg of Austria is expected to continue the Dollfuss policy of opposition to the Nazis, von Papen is regarded here as "a clever diplomat,"—who might "play his Catholic cards in the anschluss game" — the anschluss being a union of Austria and Germany.

French quarters suspect that von Papen's mission might be primarily the negotiation of a customs union between Austria and Bavaria.

"France and Italy naturally would not accept that," a French spokesman said.

The French, consequently, are continuing their policy of watchful waiting on the side of Premier Mussolini of Italy who is "ready for any eventuality." The French hope that Schuschnigg will be able to maintain the "fight to keep Austria independent" based on the expectation that Austrian Socialists will be less hostile to him than they were to Dollfuss.

PLAN NO INTERVENTION

London, July 30 —(AP)— Sir John Simon, British Foreign Secretary, informed the House of Commons today that Great Britain has no present intention of intervening to preserve Austrian independence.

Replying to a question by Godfrey Nicholson, M. P., as to what steps the government is taking to preserve Austrian integrity, Sir John said:

"His Majesty's government is continuing to watch the situation carefully, but no action on its part is called for or is in contemplation."

Possibility of a new revolt in Austria if the coalition government formed under Chancellor Schuschnigg fails to demonstrate quickly its ability to stamp out the continued guerrilla warfare, was stated authoritatively today to be feared by the British government.

This, rather than foreign intervention, was regarded here as the principal danger as the new Austrian government took control.

The danger of a putsch is seen now among the private armies of Austria rather than from the Nazis, whom the British government was stated to consider completely broken.

The view that the Heimwehr might break off with the Catholic storm troopers and attempt to seize the power alone was discounted, however, on the grounds that a united front will be required as long as any Nazi threat remains.

No Immediate Danger

Stanley Baldwin, Acting Prime Minister, said in the Commons today there is no immediate danger of war in Europe despite the difficulties and perplexities of the present situation.

He made his statement in defending Great Britain's recently announced plans to increase its air force.

He opposed the Labor party's motion of censure, declaring:

"There is no cause at all for a panic of any kind. As far as I can see, there is no risk in the immediate future o. peace being broken.

"It might well be that peace will not be broken and there are a great many people in Europe who will do all they can to see to it that it is not broken.

ACCUSE ITALIANS

Berlin, July 30 —(AP)— German newspapers charged the Italian press today with "working against" Austrian acceptance of the appointment of Franz von Papen as special envoy to Austria.

"Is this an aid to European peace?" asked the Montagspost, which with the Der Montag condemened the Italian press as untruthful and misinformed.

In a front page editorial entiled "A word against the lying campaign of Italian newspapers," the Der Montag declared Germany's peace gestures are being studiously ignored.

"Why," said an editorial referring to Italian newspapers, "do not they say exactly what they mean: namely, that Austria shall be oriented to the south and never to the north.

"Land, air and military forces along Austrian borders indicate clearly Italy's intention and guarantee that any attack on Austria's independence will be met with the direct interference of Italy."

The Montagspost charged sections of the Italian, French and English press with "accusation that may have political consequences." The German government, it said, is solidly in accord with Rome, Paris and London in condemnation of the murder of Chancellor Dollfuss.

ITALY WATCHFUL

Rome, July 30 —(AP)— Despite reassuring reports from Vienna, Italy's fighting forces remain encamped on the Austrian border today.

One official said the troops would remain in the north for about two more weeks. Traffic between the two countries is said to be resuming normal proportions.

Premier Musslini is devoting his full attention to the Nazi-Fascist hostilities in Austria, determined that Nazis shall not dominate the country. He spent his 51st birthday yesterday studying reports on the situation. He had planned to be at a sea resort with Engelbert Dollfuss, martyred Austrian Chancellor.

A government official denied reports Italy is exerting pressure on Austria to refuse to accept Franz von Papen, German Vice Chancellor, as a special envoy to Vienna. This, the spokesman said, is an internal Austrian affair and one in which Italy will not meddle.

Italian newspapers are urging France and England to combine with Italy to take steps to prevent a recurrence of troubles in Austria but the government spokesman said no note to Berlin asking dissolution of Nazi storm troops is planned.

Mussolini was reported to be in a bad humor after reading clippings from a German newspaper attacking Italy for sending troops to the border.

SATURDAY WILL BE GREAT DAY FOR AMBOYITES

when dedicated. It will be placed just west of the west pier of the Amboy arch and will bear a bronze plate carrying the legend of its presentation to the city on the company's eightieth anniversary. The fountain will be located in a place where it can be clearly seen by motorist travelers on State Route No. 2.

The Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., delegation, including descendants of the founders, executives of the store, and other Chicagoans, is scheduled to arrive in Amboy late in the forenoon of August 4th. The members of the party will have luncheon here at twelve-thirty.

Plan Sort Pageant

Plans are now being formulated for the presentation of a short pageant in the early afternoon. This will probably be staged by local people dressed in costumes of the early fifties and will depict a typical trading scene at the site of the first Carson & Pirie store. Wm. E. Clark's grocery now occupies the building in that location and it is planned to use his store as the background and a part of the pageant.

It is expected that the Carson, Pirie Scott & Co. American Legion post drum and bugle corps will participate in the parade which is scheduled to take place just before the speaking. Amboy's own Firemen's drum and bugle corps will take part and it is expected that a number of decorated cars, floats, ets, will also be in line.

Two-thirty o'clock is the time set for the dedication exercises. Executives of the company are expected to address the crowd and the dedication speech will be given by Governor Horner.

It has been suggested that merchants having adequate show window space might enter into the spirit of the anniversary by displaying articles of the early days such as spinning wheels, melodeons, family Bibles, etc. Any citizens having such articles of interest in their possession are urged to get in touch with the committee so that they may be used in a display on Main street.

Police on Trail of First Dognaper

Chicago, July 30—(AP)— Police today were not on the trail of the city's first "dognapers."

Kid Boots Ace, prize Boston terrier, stolen at the Western Boston terrier show Feb. 25, was found safe, and today was being sent to his master, Louis Rudginsky, Winthrop, Mass.

Paul Schwartz, editor of the Boston Terrier magazine, which took up the search, said a man and wife took the dog, but later when domestic trouble arose, gave it to a Chicagoan who recognized the ani-

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JANE TERRY comes to New York determined to show her home town Marburg and especially AMY JACKSON that she can make a success of her life. Amy has been her best friend until HOWARD JACKSON broke the engagement. Jane had forced upon him and married Amy.

In New York Jane obtains a position in a real estate office and soon is making a large income. She has an affair with ROGER THORPE, married but tires of him. When he offers to bear the expense of their child she contemptuously dismisses him. Amy takes the baby named NANCY promising never to reveal its parentage.

When America enters the World War Howard enlists in the aviation corps and goes to a training camp in Texas. His mother comes to stay with Amy and little Nancy. Amy confides to MARY JACKSON that she is expecting a child of her own.

Howard comes home for a brief holiday and then returns to camp. His mother tells Amy that Jane Terry is coming to Marburg. Amy agrees to invite Jane to tea.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIV

WHEN Amy learned that Jane and Miss Rosa had accepted the invitation and were actually coming to tea her first reaction was a quickening and tightening of the nerves. She could not help it. "Suppose we ask Mother and Alice," she suggested to Howard's mother. "That'll be seven with ourselves—"

"Seven? Six, isn't it?"

"I was counting Nancy. She'll have to come in." She meant this time to have the little girl there where Jane could not avoid seeing her. If she seemed to be hiding her, Jane might guess, and Jane was always ready to take advantage of weakness.

"Of course, Nancy! I am stupid." Mary was remorseful. "She'll adore it. And she's sweet with people. Not smarty and show-offy like so many children. So it was established that Nancy should be there and wear her Christmas red dress—it flattered her fair skin. Nancy should have a cup of cambric tea and a cookie or two with the grownups. 'I wonder if it's wrong,' thought Amy. "When Jane sees what a darling she is she might want her. Maybe I ought to keep her out of sight."

The decision plagued her, but she did not change it. "There's never any use being a coward," she thought, as she gave an extra shine to the silver laid out lace-edged napkins, filled the sugar-bowl, arranged her tea-table at the side of the fireplace. She had not told Howard in her daily letter that Jane was there. She would wait until the tea-party was over. Then she could be definite. When everything was ready, she dressed in good time and came downstairs before Mary to play herself into a cooler mood with bits of the Well-Tempered Clavier and she was still playing when Alice arrived. She rose a little clumsily, for the easy use of her body was gone, but she felt better calmer; the music had done that. Alice begged to bring the hot water and start the kettle.

"Go ahead," said Amy. "Mary's to pour the tea and you can do the rest. I'm going to sit down and be a lady at a party. I'm tired."

"What's tired you?" asked Alice. "You oughtn't to get tired."

"I'm tired asking myself questions I can't find answers for."

ALICE'S lips quivered. "Oh, that! I do it all the time until I can't bear it. I think I'm going crazy." She disappeared hastily toward the kitchen. But by the time Mary Jackson had come down and Mrs. Lowe had arrived she was back, holding herself very straight, determinedly smiling. Amy saw that her mother was wearing her best dress. "You put that on because you wanted to show Jane that we still had a little style in Marburg," she teased.

"I certainly did! And I suppose she'll consider it only fit for the ragbag, if half what Miss Rosa says about her wardrobe is true."

The door bell rang and they all turned attentive. "Jane will have an entrance," thought Amy amused. And so she had, waiting a moment to use her lip-stick in the hall until Miss Rosa had cleared the doorway.

"Why Jane!" exclaimed Amy after the greetings were over. "You've cut off your hair!"

Jane made a little mouth of patronizing astonishment. "But my dear, everyone's doing it! In another month or two there won't be a long-haired woman left in the civilized world. And what a sense of freedom it gives!"

"It's very becoming to you," said Amy. "I like it." She was watching to see how Jane would behave to Nancy. The little girl made her curtsy and then retreated to her own small chair beside Amy, where she sat demure and still, but looking with wide delighted eyes at the company and the tea-table. Miss Rosa had patted her on the head and spoken to her but Jane hardly noticed her. Amy wondered if this was pretense or real. She was stiff with apprehension. Presently she relaxed. Jane was not pretending.

"AND was I silly to get myself and Howard all worked up about it!" thought Amy. "I might have known that Jane wouldn't care."

Alice poured the tea. The talk went on. Mary Jackson drawing Jane out, the others listening. Jane was very prima donna. She was exquisitely dressed, nails, hair, complexion groomed with style and finish.

Amy found herself enjoying the performance. Jane saying, "What delicious home-made cookies!" with the faintest accent on the home-made; Jane unmistakably noticing the broken poker handle and the rip in the sofa cover; Jane's tales of her new office and her great difficulty in finding really efficient employes.

Alice was the first to leave, then Mrs. Lowe. As Miss Rosa and Jane said goodby Mary Jackson asked Amy: "Are you going for your walk this evening, dear? 'T isn't too late," and Jane, overhearing, said, 'If you're going to walk, Amy, I'll go with you." So Amy, with concealed reluctance, slipped into her coat and went along with Miss Rosa and Jane. Then Miss Rosa stopped at her own door and the two young women went on together.

"How horrible for you to be caught like this," began Jane, as they turned to the campus path. "Too frightful!"

It made Amy feel vulgar and jolly and malicious. "Save your tears, darling," she said. "I'm crazy about it."

"But good heavens, how can you be—here in this town—and alone with your mother-in-law — and Howard in the army—and aviation so dangerous—"

"My family's also here, Jane, and my friends, and I love having Mary with me. I'm not nearly so alone or forlorn as you were when Nancy arrived."

THERE was a pause.

Nancy!" said Jane, still superior and very aloof. "How long ago that seems! What a fool I was! It seems incredible!"

"Quite!" agreed Amy. "Quite too utterly incredible! And you see, I want my child and so does Howard. We're both light-headed about the prospect. We've got it all arranged. It's to be a boy and to have Howard's name."

Jane abandoned the subject and took up another. "Aunt Rosa said Howard looked rather worn when he was here and she said he seemed to have changed a good bit—he wasn't sociable and gay like he used to be."

"Oh, my dear!" said Amy, airily, having a very good time. "How absurd! He didn't look a bit worn, but awfully well.

It was fun to annoy Jane. Amy was wickedly diverted by the way it was coming on. She had been so wrought up and tense and frightened all this was the reaction. Jane had enjoyed an hour of display at the tea-party and that was enough. Amy had no more than a natural wish to check and puncture Jane's high-flying patronage. She found it comic, but she didn't mean to put up with it. Not for a moment. So she was totally unprepared for the outburst of bitter anger which her light-minded defense provoked.

"Go ahead. Remind me of it!" Jane cried furiously. "your devoted, adoring Howard! And let me remind you that you sneaked in behind my back and took him away from me. If you hadn't he might very well be my devoted and adoring Howard now, instead of yours. You want everything—you only ask me to your house to throw it in my face that you're so much happier than I am—"

"Why Jane, you silly! I never thought of such a thing! Don't be childish! And for heaven's sake don't rake up that old nonsense about Howard! I hadn't the least idea—" She was talking to the air. Jane was stalking off down the campus path alone.

LOCAL UNITS OF GOVERNMENT OWE THEIR UNCLE SAM

Total Indebtedness to be Considerably Over Two Billion

Washington, July 30.— (AP)— A survey showed today that American states, cities and other local units will owe the federal government about $1,200,000,000 when they get through borrowing all the government is empowered to lend.

Loans and commitments already amount to more than $800,000,000 not counting around $225,000,000 of outright grants.

The Public Works administration has lent around $450,000,000. It will have $250,000,000 more to lend, because congress authorized the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to take over that amount of municipal securities held by the PWA.

The RFC which lent $300,000,000 under the emergency relief and construction act of 1932, was authorized by the last congress to make loans totaling $125,000,000 to refinance drainage, levee and irrigation districts, and $75,000,000 to school districts with "adequate security."

Its commitments in the first category exceed $62,000,000 to date. The Chicago board of education now seeks $27,000,000 from the latter fund.

Officials agree it is impossible to justify a guess as to what the total of loans is worth. Those made to cities and other political subdivisions whose publicly-held obligations are quoted regularly in the financial centers are only a small proportion of the total. So disorganized is the market for lower grade municipal securities that it is sometimes difficult to get an actual bid-and-asked price.

Barren Ground Well Grown

"Barren grounds" as applied to the far northern plains of Canada, is a misleading name for the reason that these tracts are far from barren. In most places the ground is well covered, often by an even luxuriant vegetation. Also blue lupines cover acres of the Arctic tundra every summer, in addition to deep carpets of reindeer moss, and meadows of blue-joint grass.

LIMITATION OF TAXES ON REAL ESTATE STUDIED

State Commission Says It Would Reduce Local Gov't. Funds

Springfield, Ill., July 30.—(AP)—Adoption of the proposed one per cent limitation on real estate taxes would necessarily result, the state tax commission believes, in the enactment of many new forms of taxation.

The commission today published the result of a survey made in DuPage county. The survey was designed to establish the effect of a constitutional limitation on local governments as the state, which now receives much of its income from the sales tax, is no longer depedet o real estate taxes.

The limitation, the commission believes, would so drastically reduce the income of the local governments that the state, by the adoption of other forms of taxation, would be required to supplement the amount raised locally.

Would Mean New Taxes

"Whether or not the state can enact new revenue devices sufficient to make up for the loss occasioned by the limitation is questionable," the commission reported. "It does not appear feasible without a radical change in the present revenue system of Illinois. It would undoubtedly mean an income tax, an extension of the retailers' (sales) occupational tax to include sale of service, real estate and intangible personality as well as tangible personality.

"It would also necessitate much heavier taxation of business enterprise in the form of income tax, a franchise tax measured by gross receipts, and perhaps special levies. Even if all these additional taxes could be levied the problem of distributing the funds to those unites in which the stringency occasioned by the limitation is most severe would be insuperable except as it might be met by a radical revision of local governmental organizations."

One and Half Pct. Basis

In making its study of the effect the limitation would have in DuPage county, the commission used one and one half per cent instead of the one per cent limitation figure which has been advocated recently by a number of real estate boards and other organizations.

"Few people in Illinois," the report said, "have seriously considered the flat one per cent plan. Moreover, a number who some time ago urged the one per cent plan have since changed their stand in favor of the more moderate one and one half per cent limitation exclusive of debt service. In the effects of a one and one half per cent limitation plan upon continuation of governmental services are so serious that a lower limitation certainly cannot be considered."

The survey indicates that "even with present valuations doubled, an eventuality about which there would be considerable doubt, local units in DuPage county would be deprived of as much as forty-two and one half per cent of their present 'depression-basis' revenue."

Would Reduce Levies

The city of Wheaton, which last year levied $59,200, would be able to levy but $36,400 if a one and one half per cent limitation were adopted. Downers Grove would be cut from $52,900 to $33,400; Glen Ellyn from $69,300 to $47,300; Hinsdale from $45,200 to $31,600.

School districts would have their incomes similarly reduced, the commission found. In ristrict No. 36, Wheaton, there would be available for teachers' salaries under the limitation plan, $30,467 instead of the $46,065 paid in 1933. The total school budget would be slashed from $95,587 to $69,041.

"Assuming that the average teachers' salary is now $125," the survey said, "the limitation would reduce it to $77.50 a month."

The report also showed how the appropriations for police, fire and other "essential services" would have to be cut if the local governments were forced to confine their budgets within the amounts they could raise under a one and one half per cent limitation.

The commission plans to make similar studies of other counties although it believes the conclusion arrived at in the DuPage survey are applicable to most, if not all, of the remaining local governments.

The PEOPLES COLUMN

COMMENDS EDITORIAL.

Dixon, Ill., July 27, 1934.

Editor Telegraph:—Your editorial in yesterday's issue of your worthy newspaper, "Untie hands of police and crooks will fail," is a slogan that all newspapers ought to adopt and fight for until this is an accomplished fact.

The courts and police departments should be divorced from politics forever. Ability and experience should be the asset leading to appointment for any of these official positions.

None of the men holding these official positions should owe same to any political faction whatsoever. Thence their hands would not be tied in the performance of their respective duties and as a result thereof, crime could not flourish in any community and the gangsters would soon be without a vocation and be imprisoned, or following a legitimate business.

Another feature and one evidently overlooked on your part unintentionally, that all police officers should be men who have been given a course in training in some metropolitan police department in the latest methods of solving crime.

You may not realize it but many cases of murder are not solved as a result of officer's lacking the requisite experience to cope with the situation and in their investigation overlook important clues. If these men had the training this would not happen.

Then again, many of the sheriffs' offices and police departments are not equipped with the latest requirements of the metropolitan department in firearms, autos, radio, etc.

An officer's jurisdiction should not be limited to limits of the city or boundary lines of county, but should hold good in the entire state. In fact the commissions of all should be issued by the state on request of local governments.

This is one reason why the Department of Justice is so successful. Then too, the government provides sufficient funds to carry on this work and agents have an unlimited expense account.

Often times the sheriff's office and police department are handicapped by not having sufficient men to cope with the gangsters. Their force is the same as it was 25 years ago, despite the yearly increase in population.

Nevertheless, the citizens of this community should compliment you for your alertness and always being ready to carry on a fight for all worth-while things through your editorial columns. Many people may not know it, but a "live and up-to-the-minute" editorial column is what it takes to have a real newspaper. The Dixon Evening Telegraph fulfills these requirements and is one of the few newspapers that are published in Illinois that is wide-awake at all times.

HERONS ARE SEEN NEAR STOCKTON; ALSO ALONG ROCK

Strange White Birds Invade Several Parts of Illinois

The Stockton Herald-News tells an interesting story of a visit to Jo Daviess county of a "flock of twenty-five large white birds that descended along Plum river, on route 40, on the Art Carroll farm."

The birds are described as about two and a half feet high, with long black legs and orange-colored bills. After wading in the river they flew to nearby trees, and after many persons gathered to watch them, they winged their way to a more secluded spot, although they did not seem afraid.

These probably are the great white herons and their native clime is the southern shores of Florida. For several years residents around Ottawa and LaSalle have reported visits from these same species of white herons, but not in such large numbers. Some experts think they may have been storm-driven, but whatever the reason they are leaving their native habitats and flying north each year. They are also reported along Rock river south of Oregon.

The heron is coming north, as the cardinal, always a resident of the southern states, is broadening its confines and becoming a regular resident, winter and summer, of the normal midwest states.

Stephenson county had its heron sanctuary until four years ago when the beautiful night herons differing somewhat from the great white heron, pure white with long white egrets, were slaughtered by the hundreds one Sunday by boys, who killed for the love of the sport, not for any gain or because the birds were doing any harm.

This sanctuary was a few miles east of Freeport, on route 20, turning north to a large timber known as Hunt's woods.

As many years ago as when Dr. C. K. Carpenter, Methodist minister, was a boy he used to walk from Baileyville to visit this sanctuary and see the beautiful herons and their rude nests, made of sticks. They nest in the top of trees and they made an unpleasant noise, early in the morning when they used to fly to a nearby slough to get food for their young.

After the wholesale slaughter, there were few night herons to be found the next year and fewer the next, but the farmer living nearest to the woods, says he has noticed half a dozen around the woods this year.

With such a welcome as that the great white herons will fare even worse than in their native heath on the shores of Florida.
